Inappropriate Behavior Policy

The American Neurological Association (ANA) encourages open and honest intellectual interactions and debate as part of a welcoming and inclusive atmosphere at all ANA associated meetings and conferences. To help maintain an open and respectful community of physicians and scientists, the ANA does not tolerate illegal or inappropriate behavior at any in-person or virtual meeting, including violations of applicable laws pertaining to sale or consumption of alcohol, description of property, or harassment of any kind, including sexual harassment. The ANA condemns inappropriate or suggestive acts or comments that demean another person by reason of his or her gender, gender identity or expression, race, religion, ethnicity, age or disability or that are unwelcome or offensive to other members of the community or their guests. The ANA reviews allegations of any such behavior on a case by case basis, and violations may result in revocation of ANA membership and/or the prohibition on future attendance of an ANA meeting or conference by a particular individual.

If any ANA member or ANA meeting or conference attendee becomes aware of illegal or inappropriate behavior at a meeting or conference site, the person should report such information to the ANA president or ANA executive director. Immediate reporting is important to allow the ANA the opportunity to properly assess the situation and fashion an appropriate response that addresses the problem while being sensitive to the concerns of all who are affected. The ANA president or designee will be expected to gather relevant facts from all parties involved, including initiating private discussions with those who object or who are offended by the behavior and with those charged with the behavior. Additional public or private conversations with those who observed the situation may be appropriate.
